Notice.-Persons desirous of having their papers sent to them for a short time out of the city, must leave word at the office, accompanied with the price of subscription in advance, and of the postage, or postage stamps.

The second part of the article, "CLERKS IN THE DEPARTMENTS," is unavoidably deferred. The reply of "N." to "A. B.," in relation to the Commissioner of Public Buildings, yesterday, shall appear to-morrow.

Several other original articles are unavoidably deferred.

Schools.—It has been to us a subject of sincere regret that we could not attend the examination and exhibition of the various schools in our city, for nothing could delight us more than to note their efficiency and to commend them to public favor. In future, it is our hope; that we shall be enabled to perform this agreeable duty.

Yesterday the pupils of the CENTRAL ACAD-EMY were examined, and a friend writes us concerning it: "The whole aspect of this school pleased me. A more sprightly, fresh and pleasant collection of youth I have rarely seen than are the young gentlemen composing this school. The examination was evidently not a display of special drill, but a bona fide exhibition of the ordinary routine of instruction and recitation as pursued in the school; and it was highly creditable both to teachers and pupils. In Latin, in exact science, in grammar, geography, reading, orthography, penmanship-indeed in all departments, there was evidence of skill, patience and diligence on the part of the teachers, and, in most instances, of fair success on the part of the pupils. No visiter to this school can fail to perceive that a wholesome moral influence is carefully and kindly exerted, and that, whilst the government is firm, it is a reign of love. To the care of its able instructors (Rev. James Nourse, A. M., Mr. J. Harvey Nourse, principals, and Mr. J. C. Dellett, assistant,) parents and guardians may commit their boys, with the confidence that every reasonable exertion will be made, wisely and effectively, to educate both head and heart. At the close of the examination premiums were distributed to the scholars.

"COMMENTATOR" AND "NO CLERK."-We see that we are alluded to by both of our corres pondents, who write under the above signatures. In reply, we have to say, that we did suppose that Commentator, in what he first said about Methodist preachers, might by some be understood as assailing them, though from our knowledge of the writer's character and views we did not so understand it. Hence our editorial remarks at the time, referred to by "No Clerk."

While we would knowingly insert no article designed to assail either Methodists or other Christians, ministers or laymen, we are also charitable enough to believe Commentator when he expressly declares that he has had no intention of doing so. We did not indeed consider his first reference to Methodist preachers as "insidious."

See third page.

GOOD MEN DEPARTED .- The Charlestown (Va.) Spirit of Jefferson records the decease of John Yates and Bushrod C. Washington, esqrs. Mr. Yates died on the 6th of July, in the county of in the "Union," for reasons best known to the Cumberland, England, whither he had gone to careful conductors of that paper; indeed, when visit the home of his fathers. He was aged the author called upon them for the MSS., in about seventy-five years; was born in England, order to present it to the editors of the Telethough he emigrated to this country some fifty odd years ago, and has reared a large and most respected family. Mr. Washington died on Sunday morning last, in the sixty-first year of his age, leaving a most extensive family connexion, and the whole community, to mourn his nexion, and the whole community has nexion and the whole community. unexpected death. These gentlemen have long been regarded as the wealthiest of Jefferson county-enterprising, humane, and benevolent. To the church they were most efficient props; to the county, wise, discreet, and judicious magisterial officers.

THE NEGRO. - The Philadelphia Pennsylvania states that a highly important book is now in the press, and will shortly be published by Mr. John Campbell, a well-known and intelligent gentleman in that city. It is devoted to an examination of the subject, whether the colored race can be made the mental, political, and social equals of the whites; and is called "NE-GROMANIA." In support of the views entertained by the writer that there can be no such equality, Mr. Campbell presents an array of arguments and authorities, philosophical, historical, and physiological.

TEMPERANCE. - The American Temperance Union has issued a circular calling a National Temperance Convention, to be held at Saratoga Springs on the 20th of next month.

SALT MANUFACTURE.—It is stated that a capital of little less than $2,000,000 is used in the various branches of the salt manufacture at Syracuse, N. Y., and that the product of the Springs has increased from 154,071 bushels in 1805, to 4,268,919 bushels in 1850. There are 10,000 vats employed for coarse or solar salt, and 10,000 kettles for fine salt, producing 100,000 bushels per week, with a consumption of 120,000 cords of wood annually. Nearly a million of barrels are used every season for packing-salt.

THE PARTINGTON AND JONES CORRESPOND-ENCE .- Mr. Jones's reply to Mr. Partington is received, and shall have an early publication.

GOLD PLATERS .- We refer the reader to the advertisement of Messrs. Nuper and Burges, who have shown us some of their work, which is evidently of a very superior quality.

We are often reminded that LIGHTNING RODS ould be in more general use than at present, and those advertised by Mr. C. W. Heydon certainly offer very superior advantages. They are lete in every particular, and can be put up rith great facility.

To the Editors of the American Telegraph. GENTLEMEN: In your remarks upon the shor article I furnished yesterday for your paper, you say that your rule is never to remember of what country a man is after he has sworn to support the Constitution of our country, and been adopted into the brotherhood of her citizens. In this, as a general rule, I concur with you. But will you please to state whether you know of any way in which a foreigner can be-come one of the brotherhood of our citizens, except by the legal process of naturalization, either of himself or of his father, while he was a minor and dwelling within the United States?

And further, whether the evidence of such naturalization must not appear on the records some court? Again: you appear to think that my remarks evinced some asperity. But will you say that there was no asperity in the declaration of the present Commissioner of Public Buildings—saying nothing of his being an Englishman—that the statue of the hero, patriot, and statesman—that the statue of the hero, patriot, and statesman. Andrew Jackson, should not occupy a place in one of our public squares? What! the statue of the man who, independent of what! have already said of him, was twice most triumphantly elected to the office of President of the Union, to be proscribed by the man who has been appointed Commissioner of Public Buildings, and is kept in office by one of the successions. ings, and is kept in office by one of the successors of President Jackson! Will President Fillmore longer continue this man in office, and thus become accessory to this outrage upon the memory of one of the most popular and re-And now, Messrs. Editors, will you not admit that the "seeming asperity," to which you re-ferred, was justifiable under the circumstances of the case, and especially on the part of on who has personally known and most highly esteemed that great man, Andrew Jackson?

We will endeavor to reply to the questions of our correspondent:

1. We would require evidence of naturaliza tion in cases in which certain knowledge of the fact is legally necessary.

2. The records of a court should afford that testimony in such a case; but ordinarily, from a long and useful life in our midst, and valuable military and other services rendered, we would be willing to presume it.

3. If A. B. is correctly informed, there wa 'asperity" in the prohibitory command of the Commissioner, and such as should be rebuked. 4. The statue of Jackson should be placed in the most prominent and honorable position our city affords, and if any obstacle to this exists it should be removed, whether in the shape of a Commissioner, a Secretary of the Interior, or even of a President.

5. A. B. might well, in view of the alleged facts, entertain indignant feelings towards Capt. Easby, but not toward the home of his birth. nor toward the many estimable and worthy citizens amongst us who are natives of that home.

Our comments may by A. B. be deemed unne essary; but they were made to meet a prevalent and false impression, that editors only publish what they approve.

Aristides et al. MESSES. EDITORS: In your paper of yesterday afternoon is a communication over the signature of "Aristides"—the second one, I be lieve, from the same author. His first on endeavored to draw General Cass and the Hon. Alexander W. Buel, of Michigan, into the responsibility of the retention, in the Indian Agency of Michigan, of the Rev. Mr. Sprague, a notorious Abolitionist of the Seward and Giddings school. Immediately upon the issue of the first communication of "Aristides," I took the responsibility upon myself of writing a communication for the "Union," denying, in a positive manner, that either General Cass or Mr. Buel had ever written to the Secretary of the Interior in favor of Sprague's retention in office. This communication was not published graph for publication, where he believed it would find insertion, it could not be found.

that Mr. Buel, in his disclaimer, only speaks for himself; that that is all he presumes to do. It is acknowledged by "Aristides" that "this disclaimer will do, so far as Mr. Buel is concerned;" and he is glad that it is so. In the next breath he charges Mr. B. with misrepre senting his "statement, and then contradicting it." Now this is extraordinary. Who cannot see, in a moment, that after "Aristides" expresses his satisfaction with Mr. Buel's disclaimer, so far as it concerns him, he is fully estopped from all further pursuit of him? Mr. Buel said that "this is the only paragraph in which my name is used, and I have only to say that there is not a word of truth in it." Of course no one will pretend to say that this means any thing more or less than that there "is not a word of truth in it," so far as his name is concerned. It is so to be understood according to the most natural construction o

But "Aristides" asks if "he did not know at the time that General Cass, his neighbor and friend, political and personal, had written as charged, and thereupon at least half of the statement published in the Telegraph was true?" Suppose he did: General Cass has not deputed Mr. Buel to denounce aspersions upon him. Mr. Buel spoke for himself, and himself alone. But contrary. I am fortified in my assertion, by the disclaimer of Mr. Buel, on the one han and by that well-known proposition in law on the other, which "Aristides" seems to have forgotten, if he ever knew, of "falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus"—false in one, false in all.

Hence his belief that "one half" of his former asseveration is true, falls to the earth.

There is no foundation in truth for his assertion, that either General Cass or Mr. Buel have ever written letters to the Interior Department of the character charged. The whole thing I apprehend to have been simply the emanation of an extraordinary fancy on the part of "Aris-

But the reason which is assigned by "Aris But the reason which is assigned by "Aristides" for the alleged course of Gen. Cass and Mr. Buel, is the most amusing feature of both his communications: that it was "to distract and divide the Whig party of Michigan." I should like to know of the writer what he imagines either of the gentlemen alluded to have to fear from the "Whig party" of that State? Gen. Cass was elected to the U.S. Senate by the strong vote of the Democracy of the Legislature last winter, when there were but half-a-dozen

Whigs in that body. The State gave him over 7,000 majority in 1848 for the Presidency, and would give him 15,000 in 1852. True, Mr. Buel was defeated for Congress last fall, but does "Aristides" claim his defeat then as a Whig victory? If he does, I think he will find it difficult to draw the line between Whiggery and Abolitionism: for it is well known throughout the Union, that Mr. Buel was defeated by the combined energies of Whigs and Free-soilers, among whom was Mr. Sprague, who rushed upon his defeat solely for his support of the Compromise measures. Then how inconsistent to talk about men endeavoring to distract and to talk about men endeavoring to distract and divide the Whig party of Michigan, "who have nothing to ask or fear from it!"

No; if "Aristides" would attack any party of men for the appointment of Abolitionists to office, and their retention, let him fire upon his own party, who can alone dispense office, and who can alone eject office-holders from their places. By belaboring Democrats he throws no discredit upon them, but charges his own party with servility to the influence of the MICHIGAN.

WASHINGTON, July 30, 1851.

Trial of John Day, Charged with the Murder of his Wife. The testimony of Jacob Bender yesterday was to the effect that for several days before murder he had believed prisoner crazy. He

Mary Brower had for some weeks observed that the prisoner was in great trouble; he had told her of his wife and his troubles; his conversation was always of them; he wished to take his wife away; he could not be respected here; he spoke of Sheckell, stating that his wife's mother had permitted him and other gentlemen to visit her house, where his wife

Mrs. Lucinda Wilson. Knew Day, who visited her shop to purchase cigars. She said: I saw him on Sunday night, the night before his wife was killed. It was, as near as I can recollect, between nine and ten o'clock. He was with a gentleman. Previous to that I had noticed nothing strange or particular in his conversa-tion. I thought that night he looked and talked different from what he had ever done before in my shop. His face and throat were very red, his eyes looked swollen, as if he had been in a passion with some one. Previous to that he always looked very pale. The conversation was thus: I was about to kill a fly, and said to myself aloud. "I will not take the life I cannot give." He then said, "Can't you give it life?" I said "No." He said, "I can." I said, "How can you give it life?" He said he could take life and give life to any thing. I contradicted him; and he asked me how I got life? I then said, "God gave me life as he gave this fly life." He then said, "Do you believe there is a God?" I said, "Yes, don't you?" He said, "No." I asked, "What do you believe?" He said, "I don't believe there is a God a hell or a heaven." I said "How can God, a hell, or a heaven." I said, "How can you believe that?" He said, "I know there is none, and I can prove it to you." I asked him how he could prove it. He raised his hand to-wards the sky and said, "Do you see that sky? Well, I've been up in that sky far enough to know there is no hell nor heaven." He then turned to the person who was with him and said, "Haven't I?" and the man said, "Yes." I laughed at him, and he said he was going to prove it to me. I asked him how? He said,
I have a book at home which I will bring to you to-morrow, and prove to you there is neither God nor devil, hell nor heaven." His manner was as if in a little passion; his words were loud and very harsh. I did not see him again oud and very harsh. ill the Monday night when he was carried past

Adelbert Pomminitzkey boarded in the same house with the prisoner; was intimate with him.

Question.—State if you had any conversation with the prisoner in relation to a person whom he afterwards married. I had. The conversation was with respect to Miss Catherine Fridley, and was, as near as I can remember, about the last of November, 1849. He made remarks to me. He said there was something out between Mr. Sheckell and Miss Kate Fridley. He said that the way they treated one another was not so good as before; it was not so friendly. The sense of what Day said was, that I understood from him that Mr. Sheckell had deprived this young lady of her honor. The conversation then closed at that he spoke. I didn't know that Mr. Day was trying to court Miss Fridley. I was aware, though, that he knew her, for I had seen her come there, and saw he knew her. Another time, before I left the house, which was on the fourth of December, I had another conversation with him; it was in the afternoon; we were sitting by the stove; I and Day were were in a jovial conversation. Day said he was going to see his girl. I asked who the lady was. He named Miss Kate Fridley. I commenced laughing then, and said, "John, I wouldn't court such a lady what I knowed suc thing about." He continued laughing, and aid in a jovial manner, "I don't care a I'll take her any how; she is a nice and indus-trious girl." I made no remark, for I thought le was a joke, that Mr. Day could not ntend it. This was all that passed. have been about eight or ten days before the 4th of December. I think I met Mr. Day in November or December—a year after, (1850.) I was in company with my wife. I had a conversation with him. I heard of the marriage; I was then in the navy yard. All I heard was that Mr. Day was married to Miss Fridley.

Question.—When you said, "John, I wouldn't take such a lady," &c., what was your meaning of the word "take?" Did it mean in marriage?

Mr. Bradley objected to the question. The witness said he did not say "take," he said "court."

Mr. Bradley still objected to the question.

The court ruled the question out. The inquiry was, what was said, and not what the Witness resumed. I next met Mr. Day on the 9th of May last in Mr. Kuhl's, about ten o'clock in the morning. I saw nothing differ-ent in his manner; he appeared to be just as he always was. I saw no wildness in his mannoticed no sadness, no melancholy. I paid no particular attention to him: I was in the room with him about twenty minutes, but was not talking to him all the time. I saw no difference in him. He did not cry any while I

Col. Jehiel Brooks. The marriage of Mr Day with some person was mentioned in a conversation between Mr. Peter Hevener and myself ; it took place since the death of Mrs. Day. It was in reference to his marriage with the Question by Mr. Fendall. In that conversation did Mr. Hevener tell you that he had tried to persuade the prisoner from marrying the sed, from any cause arising from char-

A discussion here arose between counsel as to the propriety of this question, and it was ruled that the questions asked of Hevener were collateral to the issue to be tried here, and his answers thereto must be taken. No witnesses could be called to contradict those answers.

THIS MORNING.-Notwithstanding the inelemency of the weather, there are a good many persons present. Various witnesses have been xamined at the instance of the prosecution, which will probably prolong the trial to the end of the week.

George Clarke sworn.—Is not acquainted with the prisoner. Saw Day the night he came on the bridge; never saw him before. That was the evening before the night that he killed his wife, about six o'clock. His (Clarke's) brother Joseph was with him at the time he saw Day. Day appeared composed; he (Day) remained on the bridge five or ten minutes. He left the bridge before he (Clarke) did. Did not see Day again after he left the bridge. When he (Clarke) went from the bridge he left Mr. Sessford on it. [This conflicts with Sess-Mr. Sessford on it. [This conflicts with Sessford's testimony of Day's whereabouts at the time above-mentioned.]

Hiram Clarke sworn.—Had seen Day once efore the evening that he saw him bridge on the evening before the night that he killed his wife. The rest of his testimony accords precisely with Geo. Clarke's evidence. Charles Fraler sworn.—Has known Day for about thirteen months; knew him before his marriage; saw him before and after his marriage very often; was in the habit of speaking to Day when he met him; had had private transactions with him prior to the murder of his wife; never observed any change in his general demeanor after his marriage; thinks that he saw him a few minutes before six o'clock on the evening before the night that he killed his wife, in company with several other gentlemen. He had a private conversation with Day that evening about a debt that he owed him. Witness then remarked to Day that the debt had been standing for time, and that it was time it had been settled. Day promised to settle with him very shortly. Did not see any change in Day's man-ner on that occasion; thought that he seemed perfectly sane at that time; never heard him say anything about his wife's having had a child, or about his wife at all, except that he thought he had been treated badly.

Augustus Roux sworn. Evidence not very mportant. Albert W. Martin, Henry Hoffman, and several other witnesses were examined, whose evidence was of rather an immaterial character.

THE YOUNG MEN'S DRAMATIC ASSOCIATION T FORREST HALL.-One of the most attractive bills ever yet announced for the entertainment of the patrons of this popular place of resort, is reserved for those who will visit Forrest Hall on next Thursday night, the 31st instant, when the beautiful historical tragedy of Wallace (it having undergone a thorough rehearsal) will be presented with new scenery, decorations, &c. Those who have seen this play admit it to be one of the most thrillingly interesting which has ever been brought before the public; and the determined assiduity with which the several members have studied their respective parts gives most flattering promise that they will do it ample justice. We are also promised, in ad-dition to this, the inimitable dutch Shaksperian Readings by Mr. Glenn, in his own original and exclusive style, and which has always been received with a perfect tumult of applause. The evening's entertainments will conclude with a comic song by a member of the Association, who is said to be the very best comic singer attached to the corps. This, I am informed, will be the last night of the season; and as the young men are anxious to square off some few claims against the Association, I hope the public will meet them with a liberal spirit, and that they may be greeted by an overflowing house, as they certainly most justly merit.

WASHINGTON, July 29. A GENUINE TERMAGANT .- The New Bedford standard says that recently, in that city, a married woman became enraged because her husband refused to stay in the house, as she wished, and caught up their child, an infant sixteen months old, and precipitated it out of a second story window. The child fell upon the earth in the yard beneath the window, and, child fell upon strange to say, was but little hurt. The strangest part of the story is that the child had been unwell, but since its precipitation from the win-dow by the mother it has entirely recovered its
